Pianist George Feyer to Offer Concert at Collegeville, Mar. 4

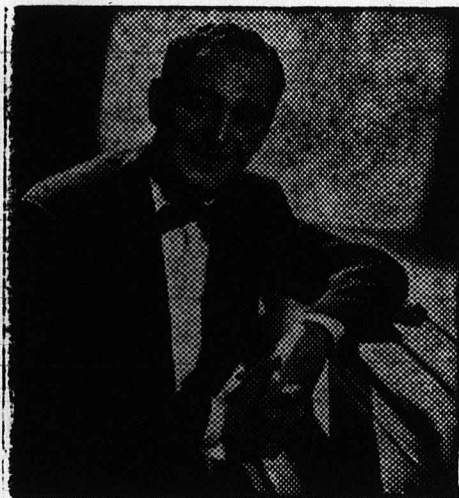

by Ed McGee

George Feyer, world-renowned pianist, will appear in the third professional concert of the school year on Tuesday evening, Mar. 4, in the Collegeville auditorium.

Mr. Feyer studied at the Budapest Conservatory and caused quite a sensation when he shifted to popular music. This well-known master of the keyboards has played in Paris, Nice, Deauville, Monte Carlo, The Hague, Geneva, and St. Moritz.

Came To U. S. In 1951

For six years he formed a piano duo with the renowned Tibor Adler. This twosome was the toast of the continent where they captivated audiences with their inimitable style. Feyer, however, began his solo tour which brought a unique beat to some of the best spots in Europe.

George Feyer

In 1951, Mr. Feyer made his American concert debut in New York. Since then he has become one of America's top pianists. In addition to giving concerts in such colleges as Yale, Vassar, Smith, Connecticut, etc., he has appeared six times on the "Voice of Firestone" and also on the Ed Sullivan Show.

Records on Vox Label

Shortly after his arrival in the United States, he began recording on the Vox label. His records have totaled over a half-million sales for the Vox people.

Among his 13 albums are "Echoes of Paris," "Echoes of Broadway," "Echoes of Hollywood," "Christmas Echoes," and "The King and I" with "Carousel." Recently, he directed his pianistic ingenuity to "My Fair Lady," also on the Vox label.

Gabors Encourage Him

George Feyer says that he owes a debt of gratitude to the Gabors, Zsa Zsa, Eva, Magda, and Mama Jolie, and also Paul Lukas, Ilona Massey and other members of the Hungarian colony in New York for their help and encouragement.

11 Seminarians Earn Cassocks

by Ron Moorman

On Sunday morning Feb. 2, the Very Rev. Seraphim W. Oberhauser, American provincial of the Society of the Precious Blood, officiated at solemn investiture services in which 11 Xavier hall seminarians received the representative garment of the priesthood, the cassock.

The cassock has a very important significance for those who wear it. It is the outward sign by which the wearer is reminded of the inward act through which he has dedicated himself to God and God's work.

Cassocks Blessed

The cassock is also a reminder and a sign of the total and complete purity which is to dominate and envelop the seminarian for his whole life in the service of God.

The investiture ceremony consisted mainly in the blessing of the cassocks. The provincial gave a short sermon, in which he congratulated the newly inducted seminarians and exhorted them to be proud of their new garment.

Service Closes with Hymn

Fr. Oberhauser expressed his pleasure also at the fact that the investiture had fallen on a feast of the Blessed Mother, the Purification, a most befitting coincidence, in that, after the devotion to God Himself, the love and honor of His Virgin Mother should occupy the hearts of His followers the most.

The service was closed, as is the custom, with the singing of the "Te Deum Laudamus", the mighty hymn of praise and thanksgiving in honor of the Lord God, Creator and Protector of the whole universe.

Family Life In 2nd Series

St. Joseph's Family Life Institute recently opened its second series. In the opening session on Feb. 12, Dr. Alphonse Clemens, professor at the Catholic university of America and director of the Marriage Counseling Center in Washington, D.C., spoke on "Marriage as a Profession, Career, and Occupation."

On Feb. 19 the informal discussion featured a talk on "The Physiology of Married Love."

Married Couples Participate

In subsequent weeks the topics will be "Marriage and Society" on Feb. 26, "The Psychology of Married Love" on Mar. 5, and finally on Mar. 12 "The Imagery of Married Love."

Each session begins with a talk by a prominent authority on the subject, followed by open discussions in which the married couples are invited to participate. All married couples are invited to attend these weekly discussions which are held in the college cafeteria.

Fr. Scheuer Heads Institute

The Family Life Institute is a segment of the Adult Education and Community Services program of St. Joseph's college and is dedicated to "giving married couples the opportunities of widening their experiences in marriage to the end that our communities will be strengthened through sounder personal living."

The institute is under the direction of Fr. Joseph Scheuer, assistant professor of sociology at St. Joseph's.

Tuition, Board and Room Costs To Increase $60 per Semester

by Jerry Bosch

The College Board of Control on the recommendations of the Board of Lay Trustees and the Administrative Council has approved an increase in student fees which will take effect next September.

Under the new increase tuition will be raised $20 per semester to $260; board will be increased $30 to $300 per semester; and rooms will cost $10 more per semester. Rooms will vary in price, depending on where the student lives.

Enrollment To Reach 1,000

Two factors have contributed to the announced increase in student fees, enrollment and the building program. Next September with the completion of the two new residence halls, the enrollment is expected to approximate 1,000.

Next year the student cost will range between $1,260 and $1,340 per year, as compared to between $1,140 and $1,220 per year now. These figures are exclusive of special fees, conditional fees, and incidental expenses.

Tuition Not Enough

Tuition fees will still entitle every student to academic instruction and advisory direction, ordinary medical care, subscription to the campus publications, admission to plays, lectures, concerts, and home athletic events, and use of athletic facilities.

Tuition which theoretically should cover the cost of administration and instruction, only pays for 60 percent of the college's expenses in these areas.

Board and Room Fees Sufficient

The other 40 percent is covered by donations from friends, alumni, corporations, and the services contributed by the priests, sisters, and brothers of the Society of the Precious Blood.

Student fees for room and board are sufficient to cover the costs of maintenance and food at St. Joseph's.

Solemn Mass To Begin Forty Hours

A Solemn High Mass at 6:00 a.m., Friday, Feb. 21, will open this year's Forty Hours' Devotion at St. Joseph's. The Devotions will conclude with the 11:00 Mass on Sunday, Feb. 23.

The Blessed Sacrament will be exposed at Communion time of the Mass on Friday. Immediately after the Mass a procession of the Blessed Sacrament will be held, and then it will be placed in the throne for adoration throughout the day.

Mass for Peace Sunday

Students will be given an opportunity to sign up for half-hour adoration periods, using slips distributed and collected by their prefects.

On Saturday, a Solemn Mass for Peace will be offered at 6:20 a.m. Sunday's Masses will be at 7:15, 8:30 and 11:00.

A sermon will be given on Friday and Saturday evenings, following the Rosary at 7:00. The Seven Offerings of the Precious Blood will be said, and Benediction will conclude Devotions for the day.

Due to its size, the student body will be divided into two groups, each of which will have an opportunity to attend one of the evening devotions.

Indulgences Available

The Church encourages attendance at adoration periods by granting various indulgences during the Forty Hours. A visit to the Blessed Sacrament during exposition enables one to gain an indulgence of 15 years.

In addition, a plenary indulgence may be gained each day of 40 Hours Devotion under the following conditions: (a) a visit to the Blessed Sacrament exposed on the altar; (b) six Our Fathers, Hail Marys, and Glories for the Holy Father's intentions; (c) the reception of Holy Communion on the day itself, or on the 7 days following; (d) Confession within eight days before, the day itself, or seven days afterwards.

McGee, Edward Mandeville, Allan Purcell, Frederick Reynolds, Thomas Schoenbaum, and Bernard Uecker.

Dean Appoints Division Heads

According to a recent announcement by Academic Dean Fr. Edward A. Maziarz, Msrs. Bryce J. Jones, Ph.D., associate professor of economics, and Richard Kilmer, M.A., assistant professor of history, have been appointed as heads of the Division of Business and Economics and the Division of Social Sciences respectively.

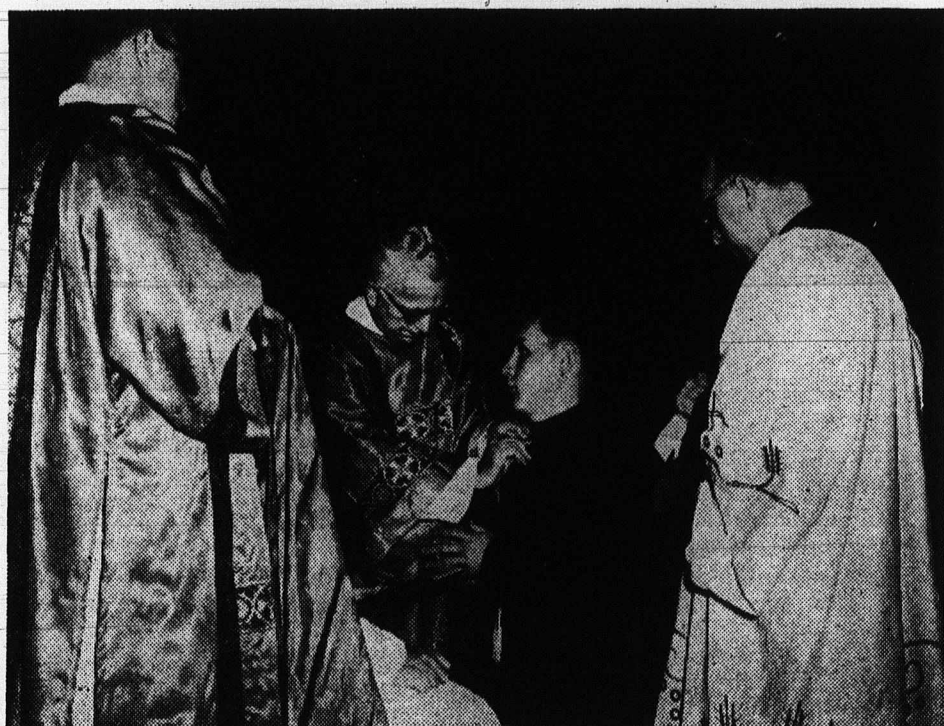

The newly organized Division of Business and Economics includes the accounting, business administration, and economics departments.

The Division of the Social Sciences includes the history, politics, and sociology departments.

Formerly the departments of accounting, business administration, economics, history, politics, and sociology were all included under the Division of Social Sciences.

The formation of the new Business and Economics Division now gives the college six major divisions of instruction. In addition to the former, the divisions are Religion and Philosophy, Humanities, Natural Sciences, Education, and Social Science.

Just One More Button

Fr. Kern helps in completing investiture ceremony as he buttons cassock of Edward Cierciarski. Also present are Frs. Schaefer, Oberhauser (Seated, but not pictured) and Lechner.

No, Not Neglect, No Players

In the not too distant future, Frs. Kuhns and Ruschau, coaches of the golf and tennis teams respectively, will be hunting for some team members for these two neglected Puma sports.

In the ICC, St. Joe is known primarily as a two team school, football and basketball being our only forte.

Why haven't we fared as well in other sports as we have in football and basketball? The only reason that can be offered is that not enough students are interested.

Of the spring sports, it seems that golf and tennis have the smallest turnout. Baseball has a considerable number of candidates and as a result St. Joe plays in intercollegiate diamond competition. In golf and tennis though, we do not participate simply because of our inability to field a team.

St. Joe was able to field golf and tennis teams in the past. Although they did not burn up the fair lanes or scatter the chalk marks on the courts, they did manage to field a team, which is something we haven't been able to do for awhile.

In a recent talk with Fr. Baird, director of athletics, mention was made of the golf and tennis situation as it presently exists. Fr. Baird stated that the athletic department is willing to field golf and tennis teams in intercollegiate competition, provided there is substantial student support.

There's no valid reason at least why St. Joe shouldn't be participating in golf and tennis on a competitive basis. Certainly there must be enough golf and tennis enthusiasts among 900 students to man a golf and tennis team.

The first step toward St. Joe entering intercollegiate competition in golf and tennis is to get enough students to try out for the teams. This, of course, depends upon individual discretion.

The first step is always the biggest. Whether or not we field a golf or tennis team depends upon us.

Watch for the announcement of the first practice sessions in the bulletins and then report to either Fr. Kuhns or Fr. Ruschau. Ed.

Reviews At Random

by Jim McCullough

The Bridge of San Luis Rey by Thornton Wilder has become somewhat of an American classic since its publication in 1927. It sold a few million copies and won a Pulitzer for the young author. Evidences of its continued popularity are the eight copies in our library and its recent adaptation on TV.

The story begins simply: "On Friday noon, July the twentieth, 1714, the finest bridge in all Peru broke and precipitated five travellers into the gulf below.

A Franciscan, Brother Juniper, resolves to scientifically prove the divine pattern behind it. He issues an enormous volume minutely detailing the five lives, but for going too far he is burned at the stake along with the actually inconclusive book.

The Author supposedly finds a secret copy and restates the problem: "Some say . . . that to the gods we are like the flies that the boys kill on a summer day, and some say, on the contrary, that the sparrows do not lose a feather that has not been brushed away by the finger of God."

To solve the riddle the author attempts to reach the very core, "the central passion" of each character. The first is Dona Maria, Marquesa de Montemayor, a lonely and hideous old woman more often drunk than sober. She is still able to write exquisite letters to Dona Clara, her daughter living in Spain, who scorns her mother's overwhelming, possessive love.

It is not until the Marquesa realizes the suffering of somebody besides herself, her maid, Pepita, that she is jolted into reality. After the climatic moment of both their lives, the Marquesa and Pepita while crossing the bridge of San Luis Rey fall to their deaths.

A second towering character is La Perichole, a tempestuous actress whose life is directly tied up with the three other ill-fated travellers. She was discovered as a tavern singer by Uncle Pio, a Svengali who goads her into giving magnificent performances in the Spanish colony. She becomes the mistress of the viceroy and decides finally to retire as a great lady.

But when the smallpox destroys her beauty, she turns to despair and seclusion. Eventually she allows the still faithful Uncle Pio to take Jaime, her illegitimate son, to be educated as a gentleman in Lima. On the way the old man and the boy come to the bridge, and both die when it collapses.

Manuel, a foundling, had a secret love for La Perichole which upset the strange bond between him and his twin brother, Estaban. In a delirium caused by an accident, Manuel confesses this to his brother, who leads a trance-like existence after Manuel's death. On the way to be employed by an understanding sea-captain, Estaban crosses the bridge and falls with the others.

The author then repeats the question: Is it accident or plan? He gently chides Brother Juniper's theory that the disaster was a simultaneous vindictive and rewarding act of God.

He notes only that those remaining—the Marquesa's daughter, an old abbess who had raised both Pepita and Estaban, and La Perichole were brought to a true appreciation of their own lives and the ones departed.

The abbess states Wilder's final, mystical conclusion: "There is a land of the living and a land of the dead and the bridge is love, the only survival, the only meaning."

What Do You Think?

by Jim St. Amour

Realism, a trend which accents the everyday events and problems of life, is predominant today in our movies, books, and theater. Because of this fact, these mediums seem to be losing their character as a means of entertainment. Do you feel when partaking of these mediums that you are being put through an ordeal rather than achieving an outlet to relax?

Al Wojcik, freshman, Chicago, Ill.

People go to a movie, play, or read a book not only to be entertained, but also to find an escape from everyday problems and cares. I think people are looking for an escape from realism rather than an approach to realism.

When I read a book, see a play, or see a movie, I want to be entertained, not go through an ordeal. People want to forget about their ordeals, but if they are reminded of their troubles through some bit of realism, they relive their ordeal.

Fred Reynolds, freshman, Danville, Ill.

Since entertainment is only a secondary objective of really good literature or theater, the question actually is "Do I go to the movies or theater or read a book primarily for relaxation?" For myself, the answer is "not necessarily."

However, if I do want to be entertained there certainly is plenty of relaxing literature, such as "Don't Go Near the Water," or the musical, "My Fair Lady."

On the other hand, I don't feel that I'm being put through an ordeal when I read such men as Graham Greene or Arthur Miller. I feel, rather, that these men have tremendous talent for portraying human nature, even though their characters are tragic.

Terry Bergin, junior, Chicago, Ill.

In our present interpretation of the term, one may neither condemn nor condone this type of literature without closer scrutiny. This problem can be more easily solved if we divide realism into two classifications: sensational realism and public interest realism.

The realism of sensationalism has been exploited to such a degree that it has become repugnant to the greater number of people. In recent years a steady diet of this type of entertainment has only succeeded in breaking down the moral code of the theater, movies and literature to the point where the general public is staying away from these modes of entertainment in droves.

The realism dealing with public interest, on the other hand, seems to have risen high above sensationalism in character. Though it is sometimes tinged with fantasy, it emphasizes what is good and wholesome in modern life and does not attempt to sell it.

Seven-Up Anyone?

by Ken Schaden

The other day I decided I'd get myself a seven-up from the vending machine in Seifert hall. I strolled to the machine, reached for a coin and produced a quarter. I was about to insert said quarter into the machine when I noticed through the little window a sign saying "Use Correct Change Only."

Correct change, I observed, was a dime. I had only a quarter.

After considerable delay in obtaining my dime, I was now in dire need of the seven-up. I inserted the coin in the machine. A paper cup playfully dropped from the slot and landed on its SIDE! I grabbed for the cup in order to stand it up correctly, but before I could do so, the seven-up started coming. It missed the cup altogether.

I hunted some more for another dime and finally found one . . . at the outrageous cost of thirteen cents! This time being extremely cautious about the downward plunge of the cup, I put one hand by the cup drop as the other hand moved slowly up to the coin slot. I eyed both operations with the utmost care and then . . . then I dared to drop the coin in the slot!

I heard the coin drop in the proper place in the machine. (My other hand was ready to catch the cup as it came dropping out; I would catch the cup, set it upright, catch the seven-up, and success would be mine!) The machine began grinding its insides; I held my breath . . . and then my hand! Seven-up was pouring all over it. There was no cup! That's right . . . NO CUP!

My face was turning a deep red. Two dimes gone . . . and only a wet sticky hand to show for them. Should I try again?

Using a devil-may-care attitude, I fast talked someone out of another dime and in a determined sort of way, I threw that dime into the machine. I stood back and watched. The cup fell, upright, into position. A mixture of syrup and carbonation poured into the cup. Then the machine stopped.

Mission accomplished.

I was amazed! Cautiously I reached for the cup and started back to the room. I was turning into the room, feeling very proud that I had at last conquered that blasted machine when my roommate stamped out of the room and into yours truly.

Anyone for a drink of water?

self by degenerating to the point where it is based solely on a scandalous or otherwise distasteful event.

The public has decided the issue of what it wants by choosing realistic entertainment of a lighter vein more often than that of the raw, abusive, sensational type of realism.

Ronald Koren, sophomore, Chicago, Ill.

Well, it all depends upon why we read. But in general, I would think that this realism gives an actual account of what is going on in the world today. Realism brings about the trends of the people and we can parallel our lives with the people in our movies, books, and theater.

The realism in the past helped us to understand what the people of the past were interested in. And so, we find it interesting paralleling our lives with the fiction writers of the time.

This realism, however, can be abused by using propaganda in the books of today. If we were put through an ordeal, I'm sure we wouldn't continue to be in this state of ordeal.

Between The Lines

by Greg Mahoney

"In unity there is strength" quoted some wise strategist. Gamel Abdel Nasser, Egypt's new wonder of the world, thought so, too, and with a little diplomatic tape tied Syria to his apron strings under the proud title of the United Arab Republic.

Oh, there was much rejoicing in the ancient streets of Damascus and the thoroughfares of Cairo, but in brave Israel there was no joy. Things were becoming a little bit too cosy for Hebrew security.

Nasser, who seems to fancy himself as a 20th Century King Tut, had shrewdly taken another move to set himself up as Pharaoh of the Middle East. His ambitions were given quite a jolt last year when underdressed Israel sent a blitzkrieg across the Egyptian deserts and almost to the gate of his harem.

Now the good general is starting to reek his vengeance on those wise guys from Gaza. He relied on a rather unoriginal, but effective trick of retaliation. He went down the block, picked up a buddy who was in accord with his intense nationalistic ambitions, and ganged up on Israel.

As a result, Israel is placed like a walnut between the two prongs of a nutcracker—Syria the northern prong, Egypt the southern prong, with Russian armament and encouragement providing the pressure. Nasser strongly insists that he is definitely anti-Communist, but the fact remains that Russia has taken an almost paternal interest in the affairs of Egypt and has shown its affection in very concrete ways.

Before Nasser could gloat too long over his little domain, last week he found out that one good idea in Middle Eastern politics is liable to breed another. Jordan and Iraq formed a merger of their own, the Arab Federation, despite Nasser's overtures to join his gang.

Although neither Jordan nor Iraq is overly fond of Israel, on the other hand neither is particularly enamoured with the government on the Nile, either. Equally significant is the fact that the states of the new Arab Federation lean toward the West in their policies, rather than depend on Russia for material aid and moral encouragement. They could spoil all Nasser's fun.

Dream your exotic dreams of a vast Egyptian domain, Premier Nasser, but don't be too anxious to build your pyramid on the philosophies of the Koran and Khrushchev—they don't mix.

STUFF - Thurs., February 20 - 1958

Collegeville Confidential

by Tim J. Sullivan, Jr.

Well, here it is, the third week of Sem. II, 1957-1958. All those guys who wound up in the wrong classes those first two days and had to endure that long walk out have finally found out where they belong. The book store made its big haul, and all the syllabi, and test schedules, and reading lists, and term papers have been handed out. Too bad, isn't it?

We lost a few students, and gained a few, and a couple made the Dean's List. Unfortunately, it was the wrong one. I'm speaking of probation. I was asked to run a serious classified the other day. Too bad I couldn't do it. This individual wanted me to insert the following: For sale: One Slide Rule. I flunked out of engineering. I wish I could have helped this boy, but we're restricted to news in this paper. If anyone is interested, though, I'll be glad to pass that interest on, but that's about all I can do.

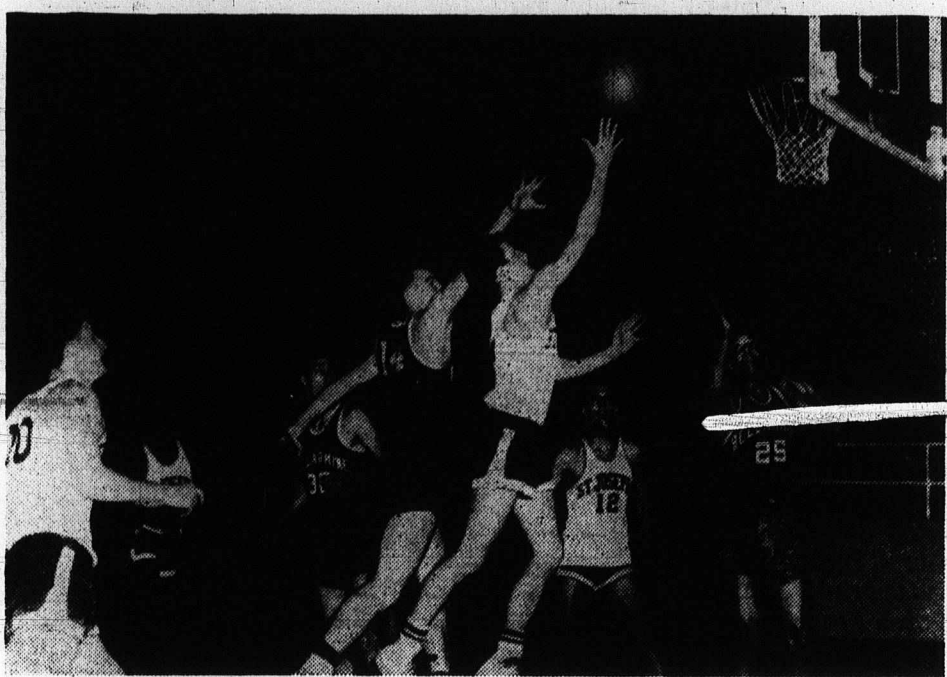

In pursuing my major, Rechallology, I have noticed a very unusual thing. Everytime Jim Deegan comes in, he plays two songs, the same two every time. I suppose it could be called coincidence, but to me it looks as if a young lady, more specifically, one at Mundelein, is involved. Or, maybe it's two girls, one for "Tammy," and one for "June Night." And another SJC man succumbs to the whiles of those (sigh) girls.

I also heard this week about one of the guys getting the first "Dear John" letter of the Sem. He got here Tuesday night after vacation, and the letter got here Wednesday morning. It seems that Miss Judy Amon doesn't go for Frank Rastigue anymore. Some silly incident involving her younger sister, a mere child of seventeen. Aga-in, too bad—for the girl. Just think, a chance to be with an SJC man, and she passes it up.

That ought to be all for this week, so I'll quit. See you in two weeks, but only if you remember . . .

. . . No man is poor as long as he can still laugh . . .

High, Wide, and Hook

Dan Rogovich, the Pumas high-scoring guard gets off a hook shot against Bellarmine. Jack Finnegan (12), Greg Jancich (10), Bobby Williams (11), and Rudy Montgomery watch play.

Pumas Rip Marian, 83-71; Fall to Bellarmine, 82-75

by Jim Quinn

The Pumas found the going tough during most of the first half in their game against Marian College at Indianapolis, Tuesday, Jan. 11. The first half saw the score tied nine different times before the Joemen pulled to a 39 to 31 half-time lead.

After the intermission, the contest was never in doubt as the Pumas poured it on. Marian rallied in the closing moments but came out on the short end of an 83 to 71 final score.

St. Joe Grabs 68 Rebounds

The St. Joe scoring had the best balance it's had all year. The first five all hit in the double figures with Bob Williams leading the attack with 22 points. Finnegan followed with 16, Jancich with 15, Rogovich with 13 and Lux with 11.

Marian watched the Pumas pick off 68 rebounds while they managed only 40. Jack Finnegan grabbed 23 of the St. Joe rebounds. He had help from Williams and Jancich who snatched 11 and 10 respectively.

Pumas Lose to Bellarmine

Finnegan tipped in a shot with five minutes left in the first half to break a 27 to 27 deadlock. From that point on, the Pumas were never headed.

On the eve of their victory over Marian, the Pumas ran into trouble on the St. Joseph floor against the Bellarmine Knights. The Joemen dropped a hard fought decision 82 to 75 because they converted only 10 of 21 free throw attempts. The Pumas outshot the Knights from the field hitting 33 baskets to 30 for the Knights. Bellarmine made good 22 of 30 free throw attempts and that was the ball game.

Lux Scores 20 Points

High man for the game was Bellarmine's Rudy Montgomery who netted 29 points. Al Stevenson aided ed the Bellarmine cause with 20. Lux and Williams tied for Puma scoring honors, each getting 10 buckets for 20 points. Rogovich played his usual fine floor game and added 16 points to the losing effort.

Bellarmine took an early lead and held it throughout the first half. They went into the dressing with a 43 to 37 half time lead.

St. Joe Rally Fails

With only two minutes gone in the second half, the Pumas came to within four points of tying the Knights. The Knights then roared to a 53 to 42 lead and extended it to 68 to 56 with less than nine minutes to play.

The Joemen kept hacking away at the lead until, with three minutes left, they tied the score 72 and 72. At this point, the Knights called time out to talk things over. They must have talked about the right things because after the time out, they fired in four baskets, added two free throws, and walked off with an 82 to 76 victory.

Varsity Views

by Tom Donahue

That triple overtime game with Evansville illustrates what Coach O'Connell said at the start of the season, that this is a scrappy crew of ball players he has this season. "The best working group I've ever handled" is the way he described them. It's tough to lose any ball game but it's just that much tougher when you drop one in three overtimes.

The Aces are rated as the number three team in the country in the small college circle but they knew they were in a ball game when they left PumaVille that night. St. Joe has another shot at them next week when they travel to Evansville to close out the season on the Ace's court. Coach O'Connell and the entire squad would like nothing better than to whip the conference leaders and I think they can do it.

Coach Jaaron has been made a member of the Bike-Webb Century Club. This is in honor of his having won 100 games during his coaching career. He received a plaque with his name and the purpose of the award inscribed on it in gold.

When the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Professional Football League open training camp next July they will have one of our Pumas on the roster. George Sherwood, starting end for the last four years for Coach Jaaron, was drafted by the Eagles in the player draft last month in Philadelphia. George had received questionnaires from the Los Angeles Rams and the Pittsburgh Steelers prior to being drafted by the Eagles. Good luck, George.

With the snow and cold weather that has been plaguing the Collegeville campus lately, it's hard to believe that the baseball season is just around the corner. This year the squad will be coached by Coach Ioffredo instead of Coach Shemky, who is in charge of intramurals and is teaching full time this year.

St. Joe will again have the services of Greg Jancich, considered by many as the fastest pitcher in the conference. I'll go a little farther than that and say he's probably the best pitcher the conference has. His 1.43 earned run average was the best in the conference last season and he also led the conference in strike outs. Tom Deem will be back to catch Jancich and will be supported by two sophomore catchers who showed considerable promise with the freshman squad last season. Bob Hamman will again be patrolling the outfield for St. Joe. The positions are all wide open and anyone possessing any talent is urged to report to Coach Ioffredo when he calls the first meeting for players.

SJ Drops ICC Games To Butler, Evansville, DePauw, Ball State

Ball State's Cardinals avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of St. Joe at they outgunned the Pumas 83-76, at Muncie last Saturday night, Feb. 15.

The Pumas never were able to grab the lead and only managed to tie the game once at 1-1. The St. Joe five missed their first 12 shots from the field before Bobby Williams sank a layup to end the cold spell.

Cardinals Pull Away

Ball State jumped out to a 37-23 lead with three minutes to go in the first half but the Pumas narrowed the gap to 37-30 at the half. After two minutes of the second half, the Cardinals increased their lead to 45-34. The Pumas fought back to within three points with 11:54 to go, making the score 52-49.

St. Joe again couldn't find the range and Ball State proceeded to build up an eight point edge with 3:47 remaining. A Puma rally again failed, as the Cardinals kept out of range for the rest of the game.

Pumas Shoot .400

High point men for the game were Jim Sullivan and Terry Schurr who dropped in 26 and 22 points respectively to lead the Ball

State attack. Dan Rogovich and Bobby Williams shared scoring honors for St. Joe with 17 points apiece.

The Cardinals connected on 34 of 81 shots for a .420 percentage, while the Pumas cashed in on 32 of 80 attempts for a .400 mark.

Joemen Fall to DePauw

On Saturday night, Feb. 10, St. Joseph's slumping Pumas fell before the DePauw Tigers 69-54 at Greencastle.

The Pumas, missing their first nine shots from the floor, didn't score a basket until more than 7:30 of the game had elapsed. Trailing 20-10 at one point in the half, they forged back within four points, 25-21 at the intermission.

Davis Leads Tigers

Five minutes into the second stanza, the Joemen closed the gap to 32-31, but DePauw at that stage pulled away to 43-32, taking advantage of a four minute stretch in which the Pumas failed to get a basket.

Bing Davis paced the scoring as he poured in 24 points for the Tigers, who shot at a .460 clip. The visitors from Collegeville hit at a .313 rate with Bobby Williams and George Lux garnering 15 and 13 points respectively.

SJ Bows to Evansville

Evansville's high flying Aces needed three overtimes to edge a scrappy Puma five on the Collegeville hardwood Feb. 8. With both squads displaying tough defenses, the score stood knotted at 57 apiece at the end of regulation play. In each of the ensuing overtime periods the Aces grabbed a four point lead or better, and in the third one the Pumas couldn't quite make up the difference.

The regulation play was nip and tuck all the way. Evansville, leading at the half, 30-29, opened their biggest spread of the night when, with 7:00 to play, they led 50-44. They then began to stall in an attempt to bring the Pumas out of their zone. They succeeded, with the result that the Joemen ran up eight quick points and Evansville returned to normalcy.

Butler Snaps Puma Jinx

Edgar Smallwood led all scorers with 23 points, followed by teammate Harold Cox with 22. Bobby Williams had 22 for the Pumas. Both Cox and Smallwood shot over 400, in contrast to Evansville's team mark of .367. St Joe managed only a .298 field goal accuracy.

It took them more than 35 minutes to do it, but Butler's Bulldogs (Continued on page 4)

St. Joe Downs Airmen Twice

by Dave Carey

St. Joe's Pumas hit the century mark in two successive games in a home-and-home series with Bunker Hill Air Force Base of Peru, Ind., by downing the Jayhawks, 105-85 on Jan. 22 on the Collegeville court, and 113-86 on Jan. 30 at Peru.

Dan Rogovich led the Joemen in both contests with 25 and 22 points respectively. Bob Williams hit 21 points in each game, Greg Jancich hit for 20 at Peru. In the first game 13 St. Joe players registered in the scoring column, while all but one of these scored in the second game.

Wheeler Paces Airmen

Ivan Wheeler, 6-1 forward, who played freshman ball at the University of Dayton, was the big gun for the Jayhawks in both games with 37 points at St. Joe, the fieldhouse high for this season, and 21 at Peru. He struck for 16 out of 37 shots from the field on the Puma hardwood for a sizzling .432 shooting percentage, but connected on only 6 of 27 on his home floor for a frigid mark of .222.

In the game at St. Joe the Jayhawks outgunned the Pumas 416 to 383 from the field. St. Joe outbounded the airmen 75 to 51 with John Bishop and Bobby Williams picking off 19 missed shots apiece.

Highest SJ Total Ever

At Peru, however, the Pumas hit .426 from the floor to the Bunker Hill's cold .312. St. Joe overwhelming controlled the boards by snaring 92 rebounds to the airmen's 57.

St. Joseph's, in these two games, hit the two highest scores ever recorded by a St. Joe basketball team in history.

Plump Gets 17

The teams played on even terms until, with five minutes remaining, Bobby Williams dropped in two free throws to give St. Joseph's a 73-71 lead. The Bulldogs were not to be denied, however, and built an 83-73 margin with two minutes to go, too much for the Pumas to overcome.

Bobby Williams paced all scorers with 24 points. He was trailed by Dan Rogovich and Butler's Wally Cox with 20. Bulldog Bobby Plump, ICC scoring leader, chalked up 17. Butler outshot the Pumas from the floor, .443 to .393.
